The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA) of 2009, signed by President Obama on Feb. 17, 2009, includes funding for energy efficiency and renewable energy projects and technologies. A brief description of the programs can be found below.

As a result of the ARRA,you may be eligible for tax credits for energy efficiency improvement measures.Go to the www.energystar.gov/taxcredits site to learn more.

Additional information about Energy and Economic Recovery can be found at the NYSERDA web site and in the downloadable chart.

Program

Description

State Energy Program

Support energy efficiency and renewable energy projects and initiatives that will:

- Increase energy efficiency
- Reduce reliance on imported energy
- Improve the reliability of electricity and fuel supply
- Reduce the impacts of energy production and use on the environment

Energy Efficiency and Conservation Block Grants

Grants to New York State, local governments, territories and Indian Tribes to fund projects that reduce e

Weatherization Assistance

Fund a network of local community organizations to meet local household needs. About $250 million in e

Energy Efficiency Appliance Rebate Program and the Energy Star Program

New York's allocation, which is still to be determined, will be administered by the New York State Energy

Electricity Delivery and Energy Reliability

New York's allocation of the $4.5 billion national program is still to be determined. U.S. Department of En

Applied Research, Development, Demonstration and Deployment Activities

New York's allocation of the $2.5 billion national program is still to be determined. $800 million is for bior

Fossil Energy Research and Development

New York's allocation of the $3.4 billion national program is still to be determined. U.S. Department of En

Science -Advanced Research Projects

New York's allocation of the $1.6 billion national program is still to be determined. U.S. Department of En

Innovative Technology Loan Guarantee Program

New York's allocation of the $6 billion loan guarantee program is still to be determined. U.S. Department